Hosting a Quiet Garden Associate Information Pack

We are delighted that you are exploring joining the Quiet Garden Movement.

Each Quiet Garden experience is unique and responds to local needs and circumstances, and has its own particular identity, rhythm and charism. Be it through day retreats, “drop-in” times or led quiet mornings, they provide space for sharing prayer and stillness, learning and laughter.

There are two Quiet Garden schemes:

- Affiliate Scheme - This is for those that have a garden they would like to open to the public as a quiet space, as well as for individuals who lead and organise retreats and quiet days in the outdoors. The hosts, or host organisation, will self-identify as Christian and are likely to be part of a church community for support.
- Associate Scheme is for gardens that are usually within organisational settings such as schools, hospitals or community gardens. The host organisation may be unconnected to any faith tradition, but they recognise the value of the provision of space for quiet and stillness for their staff, clients and students.

Enclosed are more details about becoming a Quiet Garden Associate – including details of how to apply, as well as background information about the Movement.

Before applying...

Before applying you might also like to look at our latest newsletters and news at www.quietgarden.org/news/ - and explore affiliate and associate Quiet Gardens are near you, perhaps visiting or speaking to the host (find your nearest at www.quietgarden.org/find-gardens/).

We strongly recommend that there is a small supporting team for each Quiet Garden, which will support the host, practically and with prayer – and they may help design the format and programme for that particular Quiet Garden. It may be appropriate to form this group before applying.

Questions...

There is a growing list of answers to Frequently Asked Questions on our website (see www.quietgarden.org/join/hosting/#FAQs). If you have any further questions about joining please do get in touch using the contact details below or complete the online form at www.quietgarden.org/join/hosting/questions/

Ready to apply...

The process of joining the Movement as an affiliate or associate begins when you complete the application form. It is a process of mutual discernment and discussion.

When you are ready to proceed with joining please complete the online application form at www.quietgarden.org/join/hosting/#apply - or if you would prefer use the paper-based application form at the end of this pack and return it to us.

About Associate Quiet Gardens

Associate Quiet Gardens are usually within organisational settings such as schools, hospitals or community gardens.

The values

Associate Quiet Garden spaces are provided for refuge and quietude. The host organisation may be unconnected to any faith tradition, but they recognise the value of the provision of space for quiet and stillness for their staff, clients and students.

Each Associate Quiet Garden offers a green space for stillness and quiet, deep awareness and connection to nature. Usually the space is just available for personal use. Where there is to be teaching it would either be non-faith specific, such as about mindfulness, or from the Christian tradition.

If an organisation does have a spiritual base and would like to join the associate scheme it is important for the integrity of the Movement that that spiritual base is clearly rooted, and in alignment, with the Christian tradition.

We hope those associating with us will warm to with our core values of hospitality, contemplation, nature connection and creativity.

The space

Associate Quiet Gardens are a designated outdoor quiet space, where students, staff, patients and visitors can withdraw for a short while to recharge batteries, to be still and observe the natural world.

They will vary greatly in size and design. They can be large or small, manicured or wild. The key feature is that the space is set aside, even just for a few hours, for quiet reflection. The outdoor space will act as both a context and focus, in which to share the inner search for wholeness, natural beauty and silence.

Access and use of associate Quiet Gardens will be dependent on the local situation. Most are not open to the public, but instead are a resource for staff, students and clients.

The outdoor space is primarily not a space for talking but for being. For some people who come to a Quiet Garden it may be their first experience of silence and for that reason they may need some encouragement and help in knowing how to be quiet.

Ideally the space offered needs to have provision of shelter and access to toilet facilities.

A supportive team

At the heart of every Quiet Garden we suggest there is a small group of people who will support the host and help design the format and use of that particular Quiet Garden.

We also recommend enlisting the support of local clergy and chaplains, who may be able to support the use of such spaces in their area.

Associate Agreement

When becoming associated with the Quiet Garden Movement we ask you to agree to the Associate agreement statement of intent that can be found in the application form.

“Quiet Gardens vary greatly in size and design. They can be large or small, manicured or wild.”

About The Quiet Garden Movement

The Quiet Garden Movement nurtures access to outdoor space for prayer and reflection in a variety of settings, such as private homes, churches, retreat centres, schools and hospitals – and creates opportunities for people to experience silence, restfulness and contemplative practices, with regular quiet days and retreats being offered in many Quiet Gardens. There are over 300 Quiet Gardens worldwide.

The Quiet Garden Movement flows from the example of Jesus's withdrawal to natural places to pray and his invitation to, 'Come with me by yourselves to a quiet place and get some rest' (St Mark's Gospel 6.31). If Jesus regularly and consistently needed such space to just 'be', then so do we.

"Come with me by yourselves to a quiet place and get some rest"
Mark 6:31

Those involved in the Quiet Garden Movement come from a variety of traditions, churches and cultures, and as such we express our heritage in many diverse ways and welcome the diversity of fellow travellers on the journey. All are welcome to Quiet Gardens, to rest in the presence of God, whatever spiritual path they follow.

Quiet Gardens vary widely in their size and situation, but at the core is the provision of outdoor space intentionally set aside for prayer, silence and refreshment. This can be a permanent space, such as in a church, retreat centre or school setting, or a provisional space set aside for a particular time, such as the use of gardens in private homes. A key feature is setting aside a sanctuary space and time for stillness, prayer and contemplation. Quiet Gardens are enjoyed in solitude and with others, with some gardens being open as part of regular 'quiet days' and retreats and others by appointment only.

Quiet Gardens provide hospitality and a safe, quiet space for coming home to oneself, for spiritual contemplation and reflection.

Uniquely Quiet Gardens are a local initiative and resource for people from your area. They operate in a low-key way with low-costs and charges, and are situated in town and country.

Quiet Gardens are accessible, friendly and adaptable to local needs, and aim to be places where people can find welcome, stillness and spiritual refreshment. The outdoor space and garden act as both a context and focus, in which to share the inner search for wholeness, natural beauty and silence, and in which ancient Christian wisdom and the contemplative tradition can be explored.

Core values of Quiet Garden experiences

The core values of Quiet Garden Movement include:

Hospitality – the offer of a warm-hearted, simple welcome to all. Quiet Gardens are places of hospitality, which is offered to all who wish to visit from any faith background or none. Such hospitality draws on the deep wells of Christian spirituality and the monastic past as well as the gifts of the host team. In a home setting this may begin with listening to guests, as Jesus listened to those he encountered, before responding to individual needs whether those needs are a cup of coffee, a warm corner or a niche in the garden just to be.

Contemplation – the practice of silence, stillness, meditation and prayer. Quiet Gardens are rooted in the Christian contemplative tradition as expressed in the Scriptures and the wisdom of the desert tradition, as well as the Christian mystical tradition and Celtic spirituality. Quiet Gardens provide a context for learning about these sources and resources, and enjoying silence, attentiveness and contemplative prayer.

Nature Connection – the opportunity to deepen our relationship with the natural world. Time in a Quiet Garden can be helpful for our health and wellbeing, as well as our spiritual journey. Deep restfulness and refreshment within the beauty of creation can often take place, and there will be many opportunities for attentiveness and moments of wonder and transcendence to occur. All these restore body, mind and soul. Our care for the environment creates balance for daily life and inspiration for compassionate activism. Time in a Quiet Garden enhances our relationship with the earth and encourages care for creation.

Creativity – the provision of quiet outdoor space to inspire. Quiet Gardens are often spaces designed with great creativity. They are hosted by creative people and groups. And time spent in them allows moments of inspiration and creativity to come to the surface.

The History of the Quiet Garden Movement

The first Quiet Garden opened at Stoke Poges in Buckinghamshire, England in September 1992, but the story began long before that. Quiet Gardens were the vision of Philip Roderick, an Anglican priest at the time working in the Diocese of Oxford, England.

It began in South Wales when Philip, about 14 years old at the time, was on holiday with his family. He went for an evening walk alone up the cliff path and was suddenly aware of a different reality, a depth to things of which he had previously been unaware. This experience lasted for about half an hour. Afterwards he returned to his family, outwardly the same, but inwardly transformed. He later found out that it was the site of a monastic settlement.

Philip Roderick is the Founder of The Quiet Garden Movement.

The Seed is Sown

In 1974 he felt drawn to his Welsh roots and journeyed to St David's. Here, on the spray swept beaches, ancient cliffs and ruined St Non's Chapel, he was the archetypal pilgrim, trusting implicitly that "all shall be well", knowing simply that he was meant to be there and that God would work things out. Here he encountered an amazing woman, named Lilian Jones, who consistently opened the door of her heart and her home to individuals she met around the city. Here the vision slowly began to form within: a network of pilgrim centres, a lattice work of prayer and hospitality, comfort for weariness, laughter for enlightenment, nurture for the quest. The seed took eighteen years to bear fruit from the dark fertile earth of vocation, failure and success, aspiration and anxiety. A three month sabbatical, spent partly in India and partly in the USA, enabled Philip to articulate the vision fully.

The Vision ...

At the time he was Director of the Chiltern Christian Training Programme in the Diocese of Oxford and he shared his dream of such a community with students on a Contemplative Discipleship course he was leading. These students were busy people, who sensed that there had to be more to Christianity than activity and that there was indeed a beauty in the stillness they wished to realise. They knew they were ready to engage with the contemplative dimension of the gospel: the "being" part of "human being", or to put it more colloquially, "Don't just do something, sit there!" One day while enjoying the peace of his own garden it occurred to him that what was needed for this simple ministry of hospitality and prayer was a home and garden – there was no need for expensive premises.

... and the Reality

In the early Summer of 1992 Philip mentioned the need for somewhere to begin. Almost immediately a house was offered! The generosity of the owners in "lending" part of their gracious home provided the ideal context for the pilot venture at Stoke Poges in Buckinghamshire, near the church where Thomas Gray wrote his "Elegy in a Country Churchyard". He felt led to call this venture "The Quiet Garden", after a line in a poem he wrote as a teenager, "a falling flower in a quiet garden". It soon became clear that this simple idea of low-cost retreats or step-aside time in people's homes and gardens could be replicated anywhere in the world.

Stoke Poges in Buckinghamshire

Since that first Quiet Garden opened in September 1992, the ministry has grown steadily. Soon after, following visits to USA and Canada by Philip, a number of Quiet Gardens opened in those countries. Since then people in Australia, New Zealand, Africa and India as well as Europe have offered Quiet Gardens. The concept has spread to include quiet spaces in churches, schools, hospitals and prisons.

Associate Application Form

Associate Quiet Gardens are usually within organisational settings such as schools, hospitals or community gardens.

Associate Quiet Garden spaces are provided for refuge and quietude. The host organisation may be unconnected to any faith tradition, but they recognise the value of the provision of space for quiet and stillness for their staff, clients and students.

ASSOCIATE AGREEMENT

In becoming associated with the Quiet Garden Movement we agree to the following statement of intent:

- We are committed to weaving creative, caring and contemplative threads into the fabric of everyday life. We are providing a designated space for stillness and reflection which will be made available as deemed appropriate by us.
- We agree to the suggested annual associate donation (currently £20 / €30 / $50 – or similar) to the Quiet Garden Trust, to help cover the costs of running the Movement, and we note that, where applicable, the Trust asks that any surplus funds from Quiet Garden days (after deducting expenses) are donated to the Trust to help cover the costs of running the Movement worldwide.
- Our Quiet Garden will be financially and organisationally independent.
- We understand that association is at the discretion of The Quiet Garden Trust, whose Trustees have the right to withdraw it at any time. The Trustees' decision would be final.
