
Degibna Prayer Garden and St Winwaloe's Church are both near Helston, Cornwall. They are linked by three miles of public paths and local roads. They can be found on OS Explorer Map 103.

Degibna Prayer Garden
Degibna Chapel
Degibna Lane
Helston Cornwall
TR12 7PR

GRID ref: SW653253
<http://www.degibnaprayerchapel.org.uk/>

St Winwaloe's Church
Gunwalloe
Helston Cornwall
TR12 7BP
GRID ref: SW660205

“When one is still and listens, one begins to be in touch with a mysterious element that is within each of us, which can transform and shape us”

William Segal

The Quiet Garden Movement
<https://quietgarden.org/>
E: info@quietgarden.org

Small Pilgrim Places Network
www.smallpilgrimplaces.org
E: enquiries@smallpilgrimplaces.org

Degibna Prayer Garden and St Winwaloe's Church

Two beautiful places, just a short walk apart, offering rest and spiritual renewal in the south west of Cornwall

Selected from the networks of

The Quiet Garden Movement
and
Small Pilgrim Places Network

Produced by The Quiet Garden Movement and the Small Pilgrim Places Network

The Quiet Garden Movement and the Small Pilgrim Places Network

The Quiet Garden Movement was started in 1992 in the UK by the Reverend Philip Roderick, when he observed a lack of places available where individuals could go to embrace silence and stillness and simply 'be'. Today, the movement is a network of over 250 Quiet Gardens worldwide, providing quiet, outdoor spaces for prayer, contemplation and peaceful reflection.

The Small Pilgrim Places Network began in 2004 from an earlier idea by the Reverend Jim Cotter for places of simplicity, which could invite the stranger to be at home and where all people of goodwill could breathe freely without feeling pressured into a pattern of belief.

Degibna Prayer Garden

Tucked alongside The Degibna Prayer Chapel, the Prayer Garden was created in 2013 as a space where visitors could find peace and contemplation. The garden has been designed as a wildlife friendly space with disability access. It provides an opportunity to sit and enjoy the beauty of this world and perhaps to ponder the interconnectedness of all things and celebrate the wonders of this world. The entrance is down the lane to the right of the chapel. The earliest mention of Degibna is in 1272. A chapel dedicated to St Decuman has existed in this area since at least the 14th century. Decuman was of Celtic Royal blood and he is associated with several ancient chapels in Ireland, Wales and Somerset, as well as here in Cornwall. Degibna was part of the Domesday royal manor of Winnianton which was the richest estate in Cornwall. It stands close to Loe Pool which is the largest lake in the county. The Loe was originally the estuary of the Cober, now blocked by a sand and shingle bar.

St Winwaloe's

A wild place of peace and beauty. St Winwaloe's nestles out of the wind, beside a sandy beach where the Atlantic pounds against the Lizard Peninsula. It is sometimes known as 'the church of storms'. Inside, there is peace and calm to be found. Winwaloe was a Celtic royal prince whose parents had fled to Brittany. In Cornwall, Winwaloe is also the patron of the Cornish churches at Tremaine and Poundstock, the church at East Portlemouth in Devon and two lost chapels in Wales. The church is said to be on the site of a 6th century monastery which may have been founded by St Winwaloe or more likely by a member of the community from St Winwaloe's monastery at Landevennec Abbey in Brittany. It is protected from the sea by a low wall and a ring of Tamarisk trees, known as the 'salt cedar', which grow in a range of harsh environments. In parts of Greece it used to be cooked and eaten as a wild green vegetable.

